The Great Race

This activity is inspired by television's Amazing Race – a popular competition in which teams travel the world. While that is not possible at the moment, families can still have a great time during a fun competition that celebrates travel. All you need to start this fun journey is a phone with data or connected to Wi-Fi. Simply download the Mobile Adventures app from the App Store or Google Play (on iOS or Android) and scan the provided QR code to join your private game. Families work together to solve clues and puzzles, take photos, complete roadblock challenges on video, and answer travel-related trivia questions. The goal is to score more points than any other team during this timed challenge. The game features a live scoreboard so teams can keep track of their competition and even send messages to other families from within the game.

Teams complete a series of challenges, including:

Routes – Several of the routes are clues that, once solved, reveal what photos or videos need to be taken for additional points. Others feature travel-themed trivia questions that allow teams to accumulate points. For example, teams read a message presented in sign language to reveal that they need to take a photo of a shadow puppet. Another route task has players determine the candy from a description featuring synonyms of the candy name.

For example, “Happy Cowboys” is Jolly Ranchers! Once they answer these, they are tasked with taking a photo featuring their favorite candy.

Fast Forwards – These tasks are all about moving forward and feature questions related to transportation. For example, players may need to name the movie by the image shown of a famous bus scene, name the city by the image of a bus on a street, or listen to song clips about busses and driving to name the song, the artist, or answer a question about a lyric.

Detours - Teams are given an either/or challenge. For instance, will they choose to record their own version of “the wave” or dress in their favorite sports team gear and take a photo cheering like their team just won “the big game?”

Roadblocks - Players must perform a challenge on video. For instance, recording a video pretending to eat something you find really disgusting but attempting to keep a polite face for your host or hostess. Another may require making a catapult out of something in your house and recording something being launched from it.

At a set time, The Great Race ends. The winner isn't determined by who completes all the tasks first, but rather who scored the most points in the time allowed. Shortly after the game, a link to the scoreboard along with a link to a presentation of the top photos and videos from the event are sent to the event organizer. This can be shared with all the participants over a live video platform such as Zoom, or the links can be emailed to all participants to view on their own.
